THE VULCAN ADVOCATE, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1965

Vulcan, Alberta

The night is gone and these witches have returned to wherever they come from but the joys of Hallowe'en remain to the young fry who sallied forth on their appointed rounds Oct. 30th. Depending on which part of town queried the "Hallowe'en Apples" callers numbered from 50 to 150 and as the evening wore on the flour sacks and paper bags got heavier and heavier. Strangely no matter how big the "take" it seemed to have all disappeared from view within a day or two. Other than the tossing of "water bombs" and eggs police report a very quiet and considerate band of celebrants.

Recreation Centre Now Dead Issue

The Vulcan District Recreation Centre Tuesday decided to give up plans to build a Recreation Centre here and is now negotiating for the sale of its assets. These include a large part of the framework of the former Calgary Meadowlark Park curling rink, artificial ice plant and miscellaneous equipment.

This decision was announced by recreation committee chairman Pat Walker following Monday night's meeting of Vulcan town council attended by Mr. Walker at which council voted to accept three alternative projects to be submitted for the centennial grant in place of the group's plan for the recreation centre. The three projects include two kiddies' playgrounds and a proposal by the Vulcan Golf and Country Club to provide complete watering for the course.

There has been liaison on this recreation subject between town council and the recreation group almost since the Vulcan District Recreation Centre was formed but developments during the last three months have brought the matter to its present position. Late in August town council approved application for a $37,000 loan towards construction of the Recreation Centre by this group as the town's centennial project. In so doing council agreed to accept responsibility and maintenance of the building. The ensuing by-law on this loan was defeated by ratepayers of Vulcan leaving the town and recreation committee no means of guaranteeing financing of the building, a requisite of the centennial application.

The recreation group was granted a time extension and next proposed a method of raising money for this financing through assessment of town water meters at one dollar per month.

Investigation by council of the validity of this scheme resulted in a letter from the Department of Municipal Affairs stating they were "skating on extremely thin ice" by such a move. Had the plan been approved it presumably would have required giving notice in the paper for three weeks followed by another vote if there was greater than 10 per cent objection to it. This in turn involves a second vote on the same subject which cannot lawfully be done within one year of the first vote. (In coffee counter discussions objections were already being raised against this method of financing).

Finally at council's meeting Monday night of this week it saw no alternative but to reject the recreation group's bid and, because of the time element, immediately consider the alternatives.

The issue has been a thorny one for councillors whose individual views ranged from favorable to completely opposed and to those who favored the plan but felt the group's estimates on construction and maintenance were low. However the recreation committee felt the handwriting was on the wall when the plebiscite was turned down.

A meeting of the recreation body is expected to be held later this week.

Golfers Move Indoors

Winter's arrival to this area left local golfers struggling through their final rounds for 1965 on Sunday, Oct. 31 but last Friday night many were back to the clubhouse for the annual men's stag which introduces the off-season activities of the club.

Entertainment chairman Harold Boutland and his crew served roast beef, ham, scalloped potatoes, vegetables, salads, buns and coffee to 52 members and were still able to handle seconds and the occasional third helping. Ron Buchler and Pete Thachik proved as dexterous with carving knives as with number nine irons and performed the duties with the huge roasts.

A professional golf film and colored slides of local activities were shown following supper.

Club president Charles Fulton then awarded trophies starting with the club championship which was won by Ray Wellman with Danny Watson as runner-up. The Cliff McAskie Men's Two-ball Foursome was won by Stu Beagle and Tom Babuk while the Wolfe's Hardware Mixed Two-ball Foursome was not completed. Play in this event was down to Frank Fletcher and Shirley Wolfe against Stu Beagle and Daisy Keenan. Frank Wythe took the UFA Co-op Trophy.

In the club championship events first flight winner was Pete Thachik followed by Tom Babuk and third flight winner was Larry Hagg.

A ticket bought by Wes Fulton of Vulcan on the annual golf set won for him a complete golf outfit, cart and umbrella valued at about $300. His number was drawn by visitor Aubrey Gore of Milo during the evening.

A crib tournament was played at intervals at the stag with Bob Petrosky and Joe Keenan emerging as winners.

Good Response To Scout-Cub Apple Day

The town and country were scoured last Saturday by Scouts and Cubs in their annual Apple Day and collection of bottles and batteries.

Committee chairmen Norman Leback and Dick Warren were unable to estimate proceeds from the project but were extremely pleased with response from residents and help from parents and interested adults in sorting bottles, handling apples and driving boys on their rounds.

About 40 Cubs and Scouts were in on the collection. Presently there are two packs with a total of 65 cubs enrolled, while the scout registration is down this year with about 15 in the troop.

Over 112 dozen 24-bottle Coke cases plus many other kinds of soda drink bottles were collected and 128 boxes of all varieties of apples were sold. A count of beer bottle collection has not been made yet.

Macleod Returns Kindt

In an election that resulted in little change in the House of Commons seats held by Canada's two major political parties, the Liberals failed in their bid to elect a majority government, getting 128 seats out of a total of 265. In Alberta, the Progressive Conservative party elected 15 members and the Social Credit party two.

In Macleod riding, Dr. Lawrence E. Kindt of Nanton, Progressive Conservative, was successful in his fourth election battle, gaining a majority of 2,244 over his closest opponent, Social Credit candidate Ernie Patterson of Claresholm. Dr. Kindt polled 8,639 votes against 6,395 for Mr. Patterson.

Liberal candidate Bill Matheson of Lethbridge received 3,037 votes while Sam Brown of High River, NDP candidate, polled 1,290 votes.

In the 1963 election, it was Kindt (PC) 9,722, Patterson (SC) 7,727, Bostrom (Lib.) 2,693 and Griffin (NDP) 1,126.

With one Ontario seat still in doubt, this is the way the November 8 election results stack up compared to the results in the 1963 general election:

	1965	1963
Liberal	128	129
Prog. Cons.	99	95
NDP	21	17
Creditiste	9	0
Social Credit	5	24

At polls in the County of Vulcan, Kindt received the greatest number of votes with Patterson running second.

At Vulcan it was PC 234, SC 281, Lib. 101, NDP 39; at Champion it was PC 100, SC 108, Lib. 52, NDP 7; at Carmangay, PC 72, SC 58, Lib. 25, NDP 5; at Lomond, PC 70, SC 46, Lib. 17, NDP 18; at Milo, PC 42, SC 50, Lib. 11, NDP 2; at Arrowwood, PC 82, SC 75, Lib. 5, NDP 0.

Most of the other polls in the county showed majorities for the PC candidate.

Estimated revenue of Canadian universities and colleges in the 1963-64 academic year totalled $294 million, of which provincial governments provided $117 million, the federal government $60 million, fees $75 million, other sources $41 million.

Correction In Sr. Citizens Talk

Misinterpretation of some of Leon Bateman's notes when last week's story of his talk at Senior Citizens Night was being written resulted in two or three items with wrong spellings, wrong dates or similar errors and, to keep the record straight, the following corrections are made:

R. N. (Dick) Brodrick came to Alberta in 1883. He rode in the Steele Scouts at the time of the Northwest Rebellion. (Taken from the book "Leaves from the Medicine Tree.")

Pete Enzenour, who operated an oxen-powered threshing outfit at one time and was an Alberta MLA, lived north of Vulcan on what later became the Dan McNiven place.

Max Witts, who is now a producer with the BBC in London, England, was the son of Mrs. Cassie (Davis) Witts and, after the death of his parents, lived with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hammer.

Marks, President; Margaret Umscheid, secretary; Bea Thomson, treasurer; Donna Armstrong and Helen Thompson, draw committee; Alyce Bartsch, Marj. Beckner, Marj. FALL FERTILIZING RECOMMENDED

The fall is an ideal time to fertilize hay, pasture and stubble fields, says A. W. Goettel, Supervisor of Soils with the Alberta Department of Agriculture. Fertilizers can even be applied when there are a few inches of snow on the ground.

Among the advantages of fall fertilization are that fertilizer orders often receive off-car price reductions and some companies may offer cash discounts at this time of year.

Fall fertilizing usually eliminates the hazard of getting equipment stuck in the field and avoids leaving ruts in the field as so often happens in the spring, particularly in low lying areas.

Another advantage of fertilizing in the fall is that it spreads the work load more evenly between the seasons. Spring brings a rush of work that has to be done in a very short time.

Mr. Goettel recommends broadcasting nitrogen or nitrogen phosphorus fertilizers on hay, pasture and stubble land. Once hay and pasture crops become established, the soil becomes deficient in nitrogen. Recommendations vary with the percentage of legume in these crops. For example, as the legume content increases in the mixture, the amount of nitrogen needed decreases but the phosphorus requirement increases.

With stubble crops, the nitrogen fertilizer replaces the nitrogen used by this year's crop and helps in the breakdown of heavy straw. The amount of nitrogen needed depends upon the previous crop yield, the soil zone, the amount of straw and the moisture reserve. The publication "Fertilizer Recommendations for Alberta — 1965" contains detailed information on these facts as well as application rates for hay, pasture and stubble crops.

Setting fertilizer equipment so that the correct rates are applied is extremely important, says Mr. Goettel. The seed drill type spreader and the cyclone spreading machine can both be used for broadcasting fertilizers. Old grain drills can be converted for this job, providing they are thoroughly cleaned and oiled after use to prevent corrosion.

It is also possible to rent small pull-type spreaders with capacities varying from 500 pounds to four tons. In addition, some fertilizer dealers do custom work. They apply the fertilizer with a tractor-pulled spreader or a truck mounted machine. These are designed for bulk handling of fertilizers.

This is an Alberta Oilfield?

Can you find the oilwell? It is there, even though it isn't obvious, because this land has been reclaimed for agricultural purposes. While the surface was being used for mineral operations, the Surface Reclamation Council, a branch of the Alberta Department of Mines and Minerals, administered maintenance-of-land regulations and, when operations ceased, established standards for the reclamation of the surface. The surface of all lands used for drilling, mining, quarrying and pipe-lining must be reclaimed to save Alberta's land for future generations.

Since 1947 Alberta has experienced tremendous development of its oil and gas resources. Through policies established by the Legislature and administered by the Department of Mines and Minerals these resources have been developed in an orderly manner, for the greatest public good, netting Alberta 1,825 millions of dollars.
